Underground Stream Is Believed To Flow Under the Section

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13—The southside cave-in which occurred under the home and in the front yard of C. H. Puckett last night, at 4621 Fifth avenue South continued to widen and deepen, while the police frustrated hundreds of curious sight-seers from glimpsing the 100-foot hole and the view of what residents think is an underground river.

The hole is 25 feet in diameter with 26 feet of water at the bottom. The water appears to flow. At the bottom the hole widens like the base of a cone and at intervals large hunks of the side splinter, falling into the pool at the bottom.

Mrs. Puckett, seated in her living room, directly over the spot, where after a peculiar noise, the hole appeared, heard a noise like someone had stumbled on the front porch. She went to investigate. When she reached the front door there was a crash, members of the family said, which sounded like a blast.

Outside, the slanting porch almost caused her to lose her balance.

After the cave-in, Mr. and Mrs. Puckett were afraid to stay in the house and left. A former cave-in at Sixth avenue and 24th street South and another at Fifth avenue and 36th street south, had taken noticeably drops. Other minor holes over the section had shifted.

Big Bear Tracks Double Wages, Double Values Stables and Theaters Lead to Cure Cancers?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1925, By The Star Co.) For Albany-Decatur Daily.

IT WAS said on Tuesday that "tracks of the big bear" were visible in Wall Street, if so the big bear, after a short walk around the exchange, evidently decided to go back to bed for a while. There were no "big bear" tracks yesterday.

It was a quiet, more peaceful day in Wall Street, and the little lambs went home with some of the wool clinging to their backs after a 2,700,000 share day, once that would have startled finance in ordinary times. In these days big figures surprise no one.

BIG men and little men ask themselves whether prosperity and boom times will continue and big men know, if possible, less than little men. The little men GUESS, so they have an even chance of being right.

Those that write financial and commercial history fifty years hence, will be amazed in observing the failure of Americans in 1925 to realize that when the average income of citizens doubles, values also double.

A LABORER'S cottage in China—if laborers have cottages there—can be worth only what a Chinese laborer can afford to pay for rent out of his wages.

The same cottage, transported to the United States, may be worth ten times as much, because labor here earns ten times as much.

The value of all things depends upon the value of human labor. While labor goes up, other values go up.

THE Federal trade commission, anxious perhaps to earn its salary wants men owning moving pictures and also theaters to sell the theaters. The commission says they cannot own BOTH.

That is new and doesn't seem to fit the constitution which allows a man to own and use property if he doesn't injure others.

IF Messrs Zukor and Lasky cannot show their own pictures in their own theaters, what right has the express company to stable their own horses in its own stables? Why not compel the express company to sell its stables or sell its horses.

Stables are more closely related to horses than moving pictures to theaters.

IF Zukor and Lasky cannot show pictures they manufacture in theaters they build and own how can Standard Oil exhibit and sell the gasoline it manufactures in the thousands of gasoline stations that it builds and owns.

How can a manufacturer of shoes sell his shoes in his own store?

If the trade commission will prevent as far as possible swindling and misrepresentation and allow legitimate business men to do their business in a business way, it will be attending to its work.

PROFESSOR BELL, a surgeon of authority, director of the Liverpool cancer research, announces to the Toronto Academy of medicine a new and successful treatment of cancer. Fifty cases including many considered hopeless, have been cured by injections of lead solution.

One woman with only a few weeks to live was cured, so this responsible surgeon says, of a rapidly growing "spindle-cell-sarcoma."

IF IT is true that a poisonous lead solution can attack and destroy cancer tissues, without destroying normal tissue, it means the saving of millions of lives, and, most important, it means avoiding agony physical and mental, beyond calculation.

EVIDENCES OF OIL SEEN AT ENGLISH 1 NEAR AUSTINVILLE

Scores Of Visitors See "Rainbows" On The Water

OFFICIALS ARE VERY OPTIMISTIC

Bucket Bringing Large Quantities of Water To The Surface

Many local people have visited English number one the well being sunk here by the Albany-Decatur Oil and Gas company during the past few days to see the showings of oil which are readily apparent to observers, as the giant bucket brings gallon after gallon of water from the well.

As the buckets are "dumped," the water flows into a miniature lake a short distance away. In the channel cut by the flowing water, enroute to the lake, "rainbows" appear on the surface and grease is apparent on the surface of the water, which itself seems thick.

Officials of the company declared today no estimate could be made of the extent of the oil. It was believed that the oil was being brought into the well with water seepage. Interest in the development continues high all over this section, not only among those who have invested in the project, but by the public generally. It was believed that if oil in large quantities is found, that the community would receive a great commercial and industrial boost.

Colonel W. B. Edmundson, president of the company, who is watching the developments closely, this morning was very optimistic over the outlook. He was of the opinion that the showings of oil were getting stronger every day.

The well now is 3,700 feet deep. Water today probably was in the neighborhood of 2700 feet in the well according to opinions expressed on the scene. The 60-foot bucket, however, is bringing it to the surface rapidly and officials continued exceedingly hopeful over the situation.

It was pointed out that if oil is found in the present well in any large quantity, that this circumstance likely will lead to other and extensive developments of the local field.

BRITISH UNDERSEA BOAT IS LOCATED

Crew Of 68 Entrapped In Watery Tomb Off English Coast

(Associated Press) PLYMOUTH, Eng., Nov. 13—The submarine M-1 was located today on the bed of the sea, twelve miles southwest of Start Point Devonshire. There is a slight chance that the members of the crew of 68 are still alive.

The M-1 which disappeared during maneuvers in the Channel is said to be lying at too great a depth to permit diving operations.

The naval rescue ships are reported to have ascertained that the M-1 had not suffered from any collision and for this reason it is thought that the men on board may be still alive.

Experts say the crew face a terrible lingering death as the boat is of too great a size and lying in too deep water to permit raising her.

ENGINEER LYNCH TAKEN ILL IN CAB, DIES IN THE YARD

Birmingham Railroader Succumbs Suddenly Awaiting 'Run'

FUNERAL PLANS NOT YET MADE

Wife To Arrive Here at Three O'clock From Birmingham

James Lynch Louisville and Nashville freight engineer, died suddenly this morning, shortly after nine o'clock, in the yards of the railroad company here, while preparing to take out his train on his "run." He was in his cab, railroad officials stated, when he was first stricken.

Mr. Lynch, when he reported this morning for his engine, was said to have been feeling well apparently and laughed and talked with his associates. He received his orders and was en route to his engine it was said, when he suddenly became ill and expired a short time later.

Mr. Lynch resided in Birmingham and his wife there was notified immediately of her husband's tragic death. Pending her arrival here this afternoon on Louisville and Nashville train number two, funeral arrangements had not been made. The body of the engineer was removed to Priest funeral parlors on Grant street.

It was stated Mr. Lynch was due to take out a freight train this morning. He was called and reported for work, receiving his orders, and then going to his engine. Before he could get underway, he became ill and then was removed to the yard office, and Dr. F. P. Pettay, the railroad physician, was summoned, arriving a few minutes later. The unfortunate man, however was beyond medical assistance.

Mr Lynch apparently was between 45 and 50 years of age. For many years he had been employed by the Louisville and Nashville railroad company, running on the north and south division. He was widely known in railroad circles throughout the division and his death today was a pronounced shock to many friends in Albany and Decatur.

Majority Will Ask For Insurance of Nitrates

Tomorrow To Mark End of Work of Investigators

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—The Muscle Shoals commission will pass out of existence tomorrow. President Coolidge will be tendered the commission's majority report. The minority report is not expected to be sent to the white house until sometime later.

The final meeting of the commission is called for eleven o'clock tomorrow, when the final draft of the report will be prepared.

William McClellan, who with Harry Curtis, compose the minority of the commission, was in Washington today but left for New York after informing the commission he could not sign the majority report and could not attend the meeting tomorrow.

Although the two minority members will join in submitting the minority report, their recommendations for the disposition of Muscle Shoals differ materially.

McClellan holds the primary use of Muscle Shoals should be the sale of power, the revenue going into the treasury, and the manufacture of fertilizer should be secondary. Curtis opposes the manufacture of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals unless the operating concern is required to pay rental and other charges so that they would be on an even level of competition with private fertilizer manufacturers. If this is not done, he favors holding the nitrate plant in a standby condition for use in national defense and emergency.

Both Curtis and McClellan are opposed to government operation under any circumstances.

The majority members of the commission, Chairman McKenzie former Senator Dial and Russell Bower believe that the primary use of Muscle Shoals should be the manufacture of fertilizer in time of peace and for ammunition in time of war and that only surplus power should be sold for distribution.

They favor a preferred status in the fertilizer operating concern by having the use of the power and all other property at Muscle Shoals and, if necessary, subsidize the concern from the profits from the sale of power.

They contend that the farmers of the country should be given cheap fertilizer from the government plan, regardless of how it would effect private producers. The majority members recommend first the lease of the property to a private operator if a satisfactory private lease cannot be obtained, they favor the government operating the whole property, rather than let it stand idle.

SYNOPSIS

David Lacy, driving through Connecticut tonight, was mystified to be hailed by a young woman in man's garb, who asked the privilege of riding with him. They drove to the Sound, crossed on a ferry, and were on Long Island when they had a collision, in which Lacy was killed. Now he's trying to make out what it's all about. Meanwhile, the girl, who is Connamara Moore, finds herself on a yacht in the company of Pooch, another stranger, being pursued by "re-emergers."

"Hey, what's the idea, sprinting like that?" demanded the big man. "Didn't you hear me tell you to stop?"

"I could hear the tune, but I couldn't quite catch the words," said David. He smiled politely.

"Yeah? Well, I'll words you, if you try getting new around here," replied the big man, who was evidently possessed of no mean wit. "Come on now—stick 'em up."

"Anything to make you happy," agreed David. "That's all I live for, really." He raised his hands above his head obligingly.

"That's better," the big man said. The revolver, in his admirably steady hand, pointed at David's chest. He made a backward gesture of his head toward his companion. "All right, Sweetie—go on through him."

"Sweetie!" said David. "Isn't it nice you boys get on so well together? That's what I like to see."

The shorter figure came into the circle of light. David's first thought was that never had he seen worse-fitting clothes.

"Aw, shut your face," replied the laconic Sweetie.

From somewhere within the depths of a flapping sleeve a thin, small hand shot out. David looked at it attentively, then closely scanned its owner's countenance. Between the cap and the upturned coat collar was the powdered, rouged face of a rather pretty girl—scarcely the daughter of a hundred ears, but still a rather pretty girl. "Is there no line of business," David asked himself, "that is safe from the intrusions of women, these days?"

He shook his head at her, more in sorrow than in anger.

"Oh, Sweetie," he said, in pained tones, "aren't you ashamed of yourself, dressing up in Brother's clothes? Will you never outgrow your tomboy ways?"

"Aw, shut your face," replied the laconic Sweetie. With deft and experienced fingers she searched him thoroughly, while he regarded the process with deep interest.

"Not on him, Doc," she reported to her companion, finally.

"I could have told you that, Sweetie, if you had only asked me in a nice way," said David. "Look at all the trouble you and your boy friend had to go to, just because of your impetuous ways."

"The girl must 'a' got it," the big man said. He approached David menacingly. "Where the hell did she go to?"

"That," said David, "is just what I was looking into when you interrupted me."

"One more of those cracks, and you're going to get a bust in the nose, see?" prophesied the big man. "That's that wicked temper again," said David sadly. "You must try to remember that your heart is God's little garden."

With a bellow the big man lunged at him. But the girl, with a bored air, pulled him back.

"Oh, can that," she said wearily.

"They must have gone off in a boat, Doc, like you said," Swede had the right dope on that bird, Pooch, after all. Me, I always did think he was crooked."

"Yeah? Well, we can fix that up, all right, all right," said the big man. "Come on, Sweetie—we'll get 'em. We got a pretty good notion which way they'll be headin'. What? I do with him—" he indicated the attentive David with a movement of his head—"crack him on the head and leave him lay here!"

Sweetie considered a moment. "Oh, drag him along," she said. "He can help with the engine. I'm rotten at that stuff."

The big man approached David. "Go on, you," he ordered. "Try anything fancy, and it'll be your last official act, see? And keep 'em up."

The girl, with the flashlight, led the way along the ditch. Then came the obliging David, his hands airy above his head, the end of Doc's revolver nuzzling his back. At his heels was Doc, breathing heavily, and whole heartedly cursing various roots and stones and twigs.

"Couldn't we have a song?" suggested David. "It's always easier to march with music. What do you know, Sweetie?"

"Think you're funny don't you?" growled the big man.

"No," said David, with perfect truth.

"Well, then shut up."

"What would he have said if I'd said yes?" David wondered. But he remained silent. He gathered that they were on their way to find Connamara, and he felt it best to stay quietly along with them. Doubtless they could find her far more easily than he. They appeared to know her ways. Probably they all traveled in the same set.

The ditch dwindled away, gave place to a stretch of sharp stiff grass, then to an expanse of gray, cold, unpleasantly flabby sand. Beyond it the black water tossed peevishly. Lightning cut viciously across the wild sky, and with a roar and a rush the storm broke. There was no preliminary patter of infrequent drops; sheets of water dropped abruptly from above. The little procession toiling along the soggy sands was drenched immediately.

Suddenly the girl uttered an exclamation of relief. The last lightning flash revealed a tiny, ancient pier, to which was tied a little open motor-boat—apparently one of the first ever made.

"This is us, Doc," commented Sweetie. "I knew it was right along here."

"Well, it's about time," was Doc's remark. It appeared to David to mean singularly little. He feared that the big man was one who spoke merely for the pleasure of the exercise.

The procession veered sharply, and made toward the boat. The girl got in it, and took the cover from the rusty engine.

"Get in, you," the big man ordered David. His voice breaking to a whine, he turned imploringly to the girl.

"Aw, say, Sweetie, why don't I just busy him now and leave him here?" he asked.

"Oh, let him alone," replied the girl. "He'll do his stuff if the engine dies on us. We can flop him overboard if he tries any stunts."

"Bless your little soft heart, Sweetie," murmured David. He got into the boat and sat beside her. Doc untied the rope and followed them.

The little boat tossed and lurched on the growling water as the big man wrestled with its motor. David noticed, by a flare of lightning, that the craft's name was painted, in well-worn letters, across its stern. There displayed were the words Idle Hour.

"What an understatement," thought David.

The big man paused, raised his head to the raging heavens, and told God all about the stubbornness of the little engine. In the middle of his remarks the girl yawned. Having concluded, he addressed himself again to his work, gave a mighty wrench, and the motor started, with a succession of plaintive chugs. He took the wheel, and tossed his revolver to Sweetie.

"Keep it on him," he said.

"I'll do that," promised Sweetie grimly. She turned the revolver on David.

What can I do?

"Oh, why can't I have a skin like other girls? Why do I have to have these ugly pimples, blotches and blackheads?"

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happiest girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red-blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them—kills them right out—stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous, red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin—drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.

This 600 bales at the first of the present week and with cotton still coming rapidly, it is expected that total receipts for this season will amount to 125,000 bales.

Rev. J. B. M. Rice the new junior preacher who will assist Rev. R. W. Anderson the present conference year arrived in Hartselle last Tuesday afternoon and conducted prayer service last Wednesday evening. Rice is a graduate of Birmingham-Southern and Emory University, and preached here last summer. He made a fine impression upon those who heard him and it is expected that his service to the senior pastor will be productive of much good the present year.

The ladies of the First Methodist church have announced their annual Christmas bazaar, to be held early in December. For several years the women of this congregation have given a bazaar preceding the Christmas holidays, the proceeds being used for charitable purposes.

Much cotton is rotting in the fields being on the ground, and it is said by many planters that they are not picking cotton from the ground. Only that remaining in the bolls will be picked in a large majority of instances. There are yet many fields adjacent to this place, from which there has not been picked any cotton this season. For one reason or another the owner could not get into the fields with hands to gather it. This week much cotton has been gathered during the three pretty days. The gins are running this week as usual, and gingers here think they will gin up to Christmas.

There was some spirit of Armistice Day observed here Wednesday. Large American flags were displayed in front of a large majority of business houses on Main street, and at the schools the chapel exercises carried out the spirit of this great national holiday.

Pays Big Fine

"I always thought if the doctors couldn't help my stomach and liver trouble, nobody else could. It has cost me nine hundred dollars and I have paid my fine. It remained for Mayr's Wonderful Remedy to do the trick. I have been in the best of health since taking it more than a year ago." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. It has been said that the only way to make real money in the used car business is to sell them "as is". That may be a good way to make money—for a short time—but it is not a good way to make friends. We figure that if we get the friends, the profit will take care of itself.

12 Years Ago
TODAYFrom The Daily of November 13, 1913

It is rumored that the Vanderbilt Commodores will spend tonight here, preparing for the big day tomorrow when they go against the Plainsmen.

Mrs. W. R. Price has opened a retail grocery at the Tavern on Sixth avenue.

After the appearance of the Auburn Glee club last night they were entertained at the Colonial club with a dance, those chaperoning were Mesdames Walter Todd, D. C. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Penney and son have returned from their summer home and are now at home with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bird, 313 Grant street.

Mrs. Vera Austelle and son are expected in a few days from Winchester, Tenn.

Former Sheriff Charles Lane, Madison county, has started the publication of the Community Builder. Mr. Lane is to be congratulated upon his initial effort, but he certainly seems to take delight in hard jobs.

Bootleggers of Pittsburg no doubt have heaved a sigh of relief with the news that "Honest Tom" Cavanaugh has resigned his place on the force. Cavanaugh has a record of having conducted 5,000 liquor raids in his twenty years of service. He descended on 200 places in one day. Moralists will attribute his success to his nickname.

There was once a poor carpenter who made his hard earned wage by the sweat of his brow and the callous of his hand. Today he stands before the world as one of the finest and most wealthy, he has treated every man fairly and squarely, he always had a good word for everyone, he is one of the few who have not forgotten the friends of the nail and hammer days, he has five limousines, but prefers to walk, he and his wife have never had a cross word—and then came the dawn, as they say in the movies.

Here is a case of carrying things to the extreme. A Pineville, Ky., woman is going to jail with her husband, for the next ten years, because she feels partly responsible for a crime which he is alleged to have committed. William C. Frazer is sentenced to serve ten years for the crime of embezzlement. In this latter day world there are a great many people who will sob over the story and feel that love is the greatest factor in life, others will look upon it as an unusual action directed by some thinking lawyer who is a good judge of human nature, figuring that the sympathetic heartstrings of the state government will be touched and the client freed. Whatever the motive, the woman is very foolish, she will only gain publicity. Soon she will tire of her bargain, her husband will gain no satisfaction from tiring.

The jury in the case of Dr. Blazer, Colorado physician, who confessed to the slaying of his 32-year-old imbecile daughter, has been discharged—they were hopelessly deadlocked after sixteen hours of deliberation. The jury should have deliberated on the case, they should have given it full consideration. On the one hand, had they allowed Dr. Blazer to go free it is probable that they would have set a precedent in the law courts that would forever appear as an obstacle in the bringing of criminals to justice. Surely we have enough of such obstacles at the present. On the other hand, the human side enters. A man, devoting his entire life to the care of a child whom he believed did not possess soul, had no mind. Think of the responsibility rested on his shoulders for thirty-two years and, according to his story, he believed that he was nearing death and did not wish to leave the child as a burden to others, or to suffer at the hands of others. That jury was made up of human beings. Would you have given a verdict for acquittal, or would you have found him guilty as charged?

Will Rogers is justified in all his clowning at the expense of Congress. After the appointment of a five-man commission to investigate the Shoals situation, taking the matter from the hands of the nation's diplomats for the time being, we are fed more raw meat in the news that the commission cannot agree. In a way the failure of these men to reach a unanimous verdict, on what is to be done with the Shoals, is a tribute to the potential powers of the state in which we live and prosper. Then again, we see the fiddling process started all over and are resigned in our belief that Congress will continue to throw the Shoals question into every sort of twist and turn. People of the Shoals district feel very much like the returned soldiers, who are waiting the government's reward to the men who fought America's overseas battle—there has not been a solution and there does not seem to be a decision likely. Grows very tiring to watch intelligent men play as children with a new toy.

BRANDON MAY YET CALL AN EXTRA SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

Governor W. W. Brandon is moving mighty slow on the point of calling the legislature into special session and friends of the proposed bond issue of $75,000,000 are becoming a bit uneasy, fearing that Alabama is going to remain in the mud, principally because the legislature is tied down by the governor and consequently is unable to act.

Such a case is not true for we know Governor Brandon to be a friend of the good roads policy for his state—he will be among the last in the state to stand back and watch the plan fall through. He and Chairman John A. Rogers are working harmoniously and the two new members of the commission seem to have fallen in line likewise.

There is one plausible reason for the delay and hesitancy in placing the great bond issue before the legislators. Governor Brandon is evidently not certain of his footing—does not yet know the number of friends ready to back the issue nor the strength of the opposition. If such is the case then the chief executive is showing splendid political judgment for should the issue be brought to the attention of the legislature and then voted down, it is likely that many months would then pass before Alabama could have another chance to pull herself out of the mud.

The state of Alabama is not only in the mud with her present system of roads, the state is likewise gaining a hurtful reputation for having the poorest roads in the southland. South Carolina used to bear that reputation—she has shifted the responsibility and it is fast settling upon the shoulders of Alabama. All around us road building is going on, the neighboring states seeing the advantage in good advertising and trade to be gained. Alabama in the meanwhile is apparently resting on her oars, preparing for the final and crucial test.

We hope this final test will take the form of passage of the bond issue and that the effort to remove the state from ill repute in the road line will not fall short. We are handcuffed and shackled until there is some movement in the direction of better roads. What is the use for farmers raising fine crops if they cannot get them to market? What is the use of people advertising their towns as being the garden spot of the earth if other people cannot get to them at any and all times? It is a plain case of wasted energy. A vote against the bond issue either by the people or by the legislature will mean a vote against the state of Alabama, and we feel that there is no such effort being put forth by anyone in this state. Alabamians who are enthusiastic over the growth of the state will prove enthusiastic for the bond issue likewise.

CONTRASTING VIEWS ON THE DEBT AMERICA OWES TO FRANCE

Often do we gain important viewpoints through communicating with people who share other views. Though we are often not pleased with the stand taken by other people, we are forced to admit that no matter how much or how little they may say, we are broadened just that much. The contrast is always so great that we pause and think. Thinking will usually shed a mellow light on the subject, showing us Reason, in her flowing robes of wisdom.

Quite a controversy has grown from a recent editorial utterance of Arthur Brisbane, editorial leader of America and a writer for The Daily. Brisbane has spoken of the debt which we owe France. He sees in the American Revolution, a growth from the French Revolution and in his view he is taken to task by the National Republic in a sensible argument, saying:

In one of his widely circulated editorials, Arthur Brisbane says that in our dealings with France the face should not be overlooked that America owes France a great debt of gratitude in that the inspiration of our struggle for national independence was in the writings of the French philosophers of the eighteenth century and in the French revolution.

For this contention there is no substantial historical basis. The American Revolution differed widely from the French revolution in its causes, its purposes and its results. It might better be said that the American Revolution was the inspiration of the French revolution, but the French revolution took such a turn that those who fought our war for independence, and established our government, regarded its excesses with horror. Americans did not throw off the yoke of one despotism in order to take on the yoke of another; they did not overthrow the tyranny of a monarch only to submit themselves to the tyranny of a mob. Our Revolution was not, as was the French revolution, a class war, culminating in a mere exchange of despots. It was not a civil war, but the rise of a fraternal nation.

The constructive course of our Revolutionary founders set America on a pathway of liberty upon which the feet of the republic have been kept during all the 138 years which have followed the adoption of our Constitution. Because France mistook class war for freedom that nation fell beneath the sway of a military dictator who drenched Europe with blood. After Waterloo, France wavered between republicanism and monarchy for sixty years.

The French revolution more nearly resembled the Russian than the American Revolution. As the French revolution eventuated in tyranny, so has the Russian revolution. Russia, like the France of Napoleonic era, is ruled by the bayonet, though less intelligently and liberally, and like the France of Napoleon Bonaparte, seeks world-wide dominion through the destruction of other nations.

Our Revolutionary forefathers were trained in self-government. They were practical men, not dreaming doctrinaires. They were patriots, not fanatical preachers of class hatred. They learned little from Europe, except what to avoid in the institutions they reared. The Russians have been imitators of Robespierre, Danton and Marat, but these preachers of liberty and practitioners of tyranny happily have no prototypes in our Revolutionary history.

But the two writers have overlooked one thing—America, whatever debt she might have owed to France, she does not owe it now. America paid her debt in ample sums, principal and interest, in the life-blood of the nation, in munitions and war stores, in a support of waning French morale. There should be no cause for wide difference of opinion between the two writers.

America entered the war in 1917 at a time when the German army was prepared to overrun Europe. The Allies were nearly done for. Of course they would have been fighting until the present in a guerrilla type of warfare, even as a part of the Confederacy continued to harass Northern troops after the Stars and Stripes had again been placed on the flag-staffs of Southern court-houses. That, however, would have been of little avail against the trained hoards of German troops, of no more weight than our own weak protest against Northern rule after Appomattox. America owes no debt to France—America never owed more than a debt of gratitude and it should not be forgotten that 56,000 of the finest of American youth paid that debt.

over. Our great civilization was pausing just sixty seconds to think about armistice day.

How much thinking can you do in sixty seconds and what did you think about armistice day, reminding us of a war that is fading into the distance?

MANY solemn orators grew tearful, they reminded you that our heroes were all brothers in war, the poor man gave his services in the army, the rich man put his plant to work for the nation.

SOME forgot to mention that the poor man went into the army with his salary cut to a dollar a day from five dollars while the rich man running his factory on government contracts saw his stock rise from $50 to $150.

War is like a great fire. The little people are burned up, the big people collect the insurance.

Therefore, the little people should see to it that this country keeps out of the league of nations and out of the world court both of which have no meaning at all, or would mean MORE WAR.

ARCHITECTS and public officials in the ancient city of Damascus are salvaging what is left of beautiful old palaces destroyed by bombardment. In the public square three bedouins were hanging by the neck, placards telling great crowds what will happen to others that refuse obedience to western Europe.

COLONEL MITCHELL has rendered two important services to his country. In the first place he told the truth about the air craft situation. Then, by his trial, which folly forced upon him, he causes the real situation to be PROVED in open court. Thus was forced the truth upon the nation, from the president all the way down.

And that's exactly what the nation needed from the president down.

A RUSSIAN professor and inventor says he can transmit pictures of moving objects by radio. That would be interesting, especially in war time, letting you see your brave boy going over the top and driving back a whole army.

It might even make it possible to put moving pictures into the homes and help to build up a race that may eventually lie flat on its back, like an oyster in its bed and get everything.

Notice to Gas Consumers of Albany-Decatur

Supplementing our recent letter to you this is to advise that the gas holder will be cut out of service 2 p.m., Saturday, November 14th, in preparation for the cut-over of the new gas plant.

To carry the building program to completion the gas holder must be rebuilt; while the reconstruction of the gas holder is in progress it will be necessary to cut the holder out completely. It is very likely that low pressure will exist at certain times in various sections of the town as we will be operating under the greatest difficulties during the reconstruction period, which will last approximately twenty-one (21) days. An extra force will be employed during the twenty-four (24) hours of each day in order that the best service possible may be rendered.

As the steady growth of the towns has resulted in an increase in gas sales, a decision was made several months ago to expend a large sum of money on the gas plant to take care of the present demands and to provide for future growth—our endeavor being to give to Albany and Decatur a gas plant that is up to date in every respect.

During the cut-over, beginning 2 p.m., Saturday, November 14th, you may be inconvenienced at times by low pressure and we earnestly request your kind consideration and hearty co-operation. We will leave no stone unturned in rushing to completion the modern gas plant with which we will strive to render the best of service.

We thank you for your patience and co-operation during the past two months while the building of the new plant has been in progress. We hope you will appreciate the difficulties under which we will be laboring to render service during the period of time in which the holder will be replaced, and trust that you will bear with us during this time.

We thank you in advance for your continued co-operation.

Gurley Flashes Good Defense But Bows To Independents Here 14-0

Madison County high school of day flashed a good defense here Friday afternoon but bowed to the Nashville Y. M. C. A. Independents 14 to 0 in a game which played on a water-logged grid at Malone park.

Not only did Gurley display a hard-tackling aggregation but in C. Stewart showed one of the best defensive half backs seen here this year. He was in every play, fast as a streak, and a rapid thinker in mosing plays.

The entire Independent team played well. The team's offensive was weakened somewhat by the absence of Braswell, but the impromptu backfield aggregation, injured though it was, worked well, while the Independent line stopped every Gurley thrust and the visitors often, sive rarely reached even the line of scrimmage. Byars Roper and others broke through time after time, spill- ing the Gurley backs before they could get started.

The Independents started scoring early. Gurley received, but finding progress slow, kicked, and the Independents then started a steady march down the field slipping off tackle and swinging the ends, with line plays predominating. Johnson finally crashed through tackle for a touchdown, adding the extra point with a drop kick.

In the second quarter, the Independents repeated the same maneuver. With Johnson, Shelton, Ellison and McRee ripping through line holes made by the Independents forwards a sustained offensive lasted 80 yards, Shelton, finally going over around end. The Gurley line made a firm last stand before giving up this touchdown. Shelton twice cracked tackle without appreciable gain, then swung around his own left end for the counter.

The second half was a scoreless deadlock. Splashing about in the water and mud, the Independents threatened several times, but Gurley always stiffened sufficiently to avert scoring. In the second half Gurley unleashed a desperate aerial game, but it was smothered by the fast-charging Independents. The slippery ball made aerial work dangerous, but Gurley was in a desperate mood.

During the course of the second half, Johnson found an opportunity to show several pretty runs through the muck. Given a dry field and

DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY MEET

The Joe Wheeler Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy met on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Emmett Himes at her home on Oak street. It was an unusually interesting meeting and a very interesting program was given, each number, either in song verse or prose, pertaining to the American Indian.

The president, Mrs. E. D. Whitman opened the short business session at 3 o'clock. At the close of this the program was given the first number being a splendid paper by Mrs. D. C. Almon the title of which was "Progress of our Predecessors and Wards—the Red Men." Mrs. L. A. Hobart told of the beauties in music of the American Indian. Miss Mary Lou Dancy, in a short talk, brought to mind the duties to the Indian. A cycle of Indian songs was given by Miss Dorothy Patterson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Curry. These were really beautiful and the numbers were a treat to those present. Miss Steinmeyer gave an Indian reading with Miss Imogene Winton accompanying her on the piano in a beautiful manner. This reading was very enjoyable and showed that Miss Steinmeyer is very gifted in her work.

The president had on display many rare curios made by Indians, bead work predominating. Many of these were over one hundred years old and showed the skill of the makers. The hostess served delicious refreshments assisted by her daughter. The home was brightened by the use of many pretty gift flowers.

IT'S POSSIBLE TO CURE MENIERE'S MALADY

Self-Poisoning, One of the Chief Causes of This Disease of Dizziness, Must Be Eliminated to Bring Relief.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A READER in Connecticut has heard about "Meniere's disease" and wants an article about it. I am glad to present it.

How do you know where you are when you are in the dark and whether you are standing upright or not? Is there some sort of a spirit level in the body to indicate your position in space and to assist you in maintaining your balance?

There is exactly that sort of a mechanism in your head. It is closely associated with the organ of hearing and is considered a part of the internal ear.

Deeply situated in the bone back of the ear are what we call the "semi-circular canals," three of them. If you will half close your right hand and place its edge on the palm of the other hand, you will see how the semi-circular canals are placed. One corresponds in position to the flat palm of the left hand. The second lies in the plane of the fingers and the third in the plane of the palm of the right hand.

Suppose each of these canals were a spirit level, you can see that one or another would always be so placed as to indicate your position in space. That is the purpose they serve in the protection of your body.

I need not go into greater detail, describing the special nerves and other features of this arrangement. A part of the inner ear, known as the "labyrinth," has its place in this intricate plan, but I have told you enough so you know in a general way how to keep straight and sane.

What we know as "Meniere's disease," or "Meniere's syndrome," begins with buzzing in the ears and staggering in the gait. Dizziness and a sensation as if everything were turning around, cause giddiness and reeling.

The eyeballs may jerk a d twitch. Faintness, feeling of illness, sickness at the stomach and vomiting are other symptoms.

These attacks pass off, only to be repeated every week or so, or even several times a day. Moving the head suddenly may bring on the attack.

There are many causes. Among them is poisoning of some sort. This may be from one of the contagious diseases, or it may be from a drug. Alcohol, tobacco, arsenic, quinine and salicylate acid are among such drugs.

Anything which disturbs the living levels I have described will cause the trouble. Bleeding into the labyrinth or semi-circular canals, the result of a fall or blow, may produce this group of symptoms. Tumors of the brain or serious brain diseases may cause it because the labyrinth is involved.

What can be done and what the prospect of cure is will depend on the cause of the irritation. Many cases make complete recovery.

Answers to Health Queries

Q.—What is the cause of unpleasant breath?

A.—What can be done for stomach noises?

Q.—What will increase the growth of the eyelashes and make them darker?

A.—Discuss tonsils, decayed teeth, intestinal disturbances, constipation, etc., may all be responsible. Find the cause and the treatment will suggest itself.

Mitchell Defense Wins Another Point

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Prosecution in the Mitchell courtmartial failed today to throw out testimony given yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne. After having heard arguments the court overruled the prosecution's objection that the evidence was irrelevant and incompetent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The courtmartial trying Colonel William Mitchell refused this afternoon to receive, at this time, the testimony of Captain Paul Foley, judge advocate of the Shenandoah naval court, who was named yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne as the officer who had sent her a statement outlining her attitude.

Girls Clubs Show Increase Spirit

The period of time since the County fair has been given mostly to the organization of the Girls' clubs throughout Morgan County. Organizations are about completed except in one or two communities not mentioned which will be visited within the next week. A total of nine clubs have been organized with an enrollment of 196, which makes an average membership for the club between 20 and 21 girls.

The girls seem ready and anxious for club work and good local leaders have been secured in each community to help them with their work.

In every case meetings are being held during the school hours and will do much to insure the success of the clubs. This co-operation on the part of the school board and the principals is splendid, and is appreciated by the home demonstration department.

The clubs organized at present are as follows:

Name of School	Kind of Club	No. in Club
Eva	Home Improvement	18
Ryan	Clothing	28
Danville	Home Improvement	15
Somerville	Home Improvement	7
Fairview	Clothing	19
Pleasant Hill	Clothing	16
Lacey Springs	Clothing	14
Austinville	Clothing	27
Falkville	Clothing	52

All the girls from the age of twelve to twenty of the Pleasant Hill school met in the principal's room of the school building November 3rd for the purpose of meeting Miss Sallye Hamilton, County Home Demonstration agent. The girls were very much delighted with her discussion as to the advisability of organizing a sewing club and voted 100 per cent for the organization.

The following officers were elected:

President—Evie Rhodes.
Vice president—Ruby Stewart.
Sec.-Treas. Reporter—Viola Praytor.
Cheer leader—Lillian Praytor.
Song Leader—Mary Robinson.

Education Round Table December 10

By R. W. Cowart

December 10 will mark one of the most important steps ever taken for better education in Alabama. An Educational Dinner will be given in Birmingham on this date. Citizens from all walks of life will be present. Hon. R. H. Powell, State Senator from Tuskegee, will speak from the standpoint of the statesman and business man. Doctor A. F. Harman, Superintendent of Montgomery County Schools, will speak from the standpoint of the educator.

Due to space limitations for holding the dinner, only a limited number can attend. Invitations will be sent out to men and women representing every interest in the state. The Citizens Invitation committee, acting jointly with the invitation committee of school men, is composed of the following: Mr. Erskine Ramsey, of Birmingham; Mr. John Cochran, of Mobile; Mr. R. E. L. Cope, of Union Springs; and Mr. C. W. Ashcraft, of Florence.

The purpose of the dinner is to discuss in an open, sincere and frank manner our educational needs and what can be done toward financing our entire school system. The above is the statement of R. W. Cowart, Secretary of the Alabama Educational Association.

Skyscraper Going Up In Anniston

(Associated Press)

ANNISTON Ala., Nov. 13—Construction work on this city's first skyscraper will begin about January 1. H. A. Chenenson manager of the local establishment of the Pizitz-Somolian Co-operative stores, has announced. The Pizitz-Somolian interests are financing the new building. The new building will be ten or twelve stories in height and is to cost approximately $500,000, it has been announced. The structure is to be used for an office building.

The lot on which the building is to be constructed has already been purchased. It is on the Southwest corner of Wilmer avenue, one block directly behind the postoffice.

Architects have already been consulted as to plans and material it is understood. The local chamber of commerce is to pass on the completed plans, as the Pizitz-Somolian interests were induced to build the structure as a civic need and the officials of the concern have expressed themselves as desirous of the approval of local citizens as to type of construction.

It is not expected that the Pizitz store will be quartered in the new building as a new lease has given the establishment sufficient space for several years to come.

At the present time, no definite arrangements have been made for the use of the lower floor of the building, but Mr. Chenenson has stated that the first floor may be used to house a Y. M. C. A. if sufficient interest is displayed in the organization of such a body.
